COUNTY COURT, SHFIEMBER TERM, A. D. 1884.

Elise Fuller vs. Heavy J. Fuller.

Washington, has this day filed in the office of the clerk of said court her petition, setting forth, in substance, that she had resided in said Waterbury for the three years last past, that her maiden many for the three years last past, that her maiden many for the three years last past, that her maiden many for the three years last past, that her maiden many for the three years last past, that her maiden many for the property of the petitioner, of the petitioner, of the petitioner, of the part, had fathfully kept the marriage covenants, but the said Henry J. Fuller, on his part, had not kept the saine, for that the said Henry J. Fuller, in September, 1882, without just cause, willfully deserted the petitioner, and, until the bringing of said petition, had continued such desertion uninterruptedly; and praying that a bill of divorce and suitable alimony be decreed unto her, and that she be allowed to resume her maiden mane. And it is made to appear to said Court that the residence of the said Henry J. Fuller is without this state, so that the process of this court cannot be served upon him. It is, therefore, ordered that the said Henry J. Fuller be notified of the pendency of said petition, and summoned to appear and answer to the sains, at a term of the County Court text to be held at Montpolier, within and for said County of Washington, on the second Tuesday of September, A.D. 184, at nine of clock in the forenoon, by publication of the svistance of such cettion, together with this order, in the Fermont Watchman & State Journal, a weekly newspaper published at said Montpolier, three weeks successively, the last of which publications shall be at least six weeks previous to the second Tuesday of September, A.D. 184, which shall be deemed sufficient notice to the said. Henry J. Fuller.

Honor to Advertising.

Frank B. Stevens of Boston, who places a large part of the advertising of the Wells & Richardson Company, was banqueted at the Walderf in New York by a number of his newspaper friends and admirers. Mr. Stevens has made a phenomenal success in the business of advertising. He understands the art and thoroughly believes in ts practice. In the course of his remarks at the banquet, Mr. Stevens said:

"It has been said often that I know the value of 'half-pages,' I do—and of 'whole pages,' and that is my principle, and if I have had the success you are pleased to attribute to me, it is just because I have worked along those lines. I believe in advertising, and if I were to formulate my theory of success in that line it would be something like this: A little ad in a little paper—no good! A little ad in a big paper—some good! A big ad in a little paper—some good! A big ad in a little paper—some good! A big ad in a good paper—best of all. There may possibly be occupations that do not require advertising, but I cannot well conceive what they are. Men in business will sometimes tell you that they have tried advertising and it did not pay. This is only when advertising is done spar-"It has been said often that I know the have tried advertising and it did not pay. This is only when advertising is done sparingly and grudgingly. Homeopathic doses of advertising will not pay, perhaps; it is like a portion of physic, making the patient sick, but effecting nothing. Administer liberally, and the cure will be permanent. Some say they cannot afford to advertise. They mistake; they cannot afford not to advertise.

We commend Mr. Stevens' remarks to the earnest consideration of every business man n the communities of central Vermont. They will find in the WATCHMAN the " good paper" in which "a big ad is the best of This is the unvarying testimony of

The fall term at Goddard Seminary will begin Tuesday, September 4, next. This institution has just celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its existence, during which time it has been a power for good in the state. Never was it so well equipped as at the present time to offer exceptional educational advantages to young ladies and gentlemen. The instructors in art and music are specialists of experience, and are second to none outside of Boston and other large New England cities. Professor A. W. Peirce, the present efficient principal, will be at the head of this institution for the coming year. Attention is called to his advertisement in another column.

ALTHOUGH not largely attended, because of the intense heat, the reception at the rooms of the Apollo Club last Thursday rooms of the Apollo Club last Thursday evening was a very pleasant affair. At nine o'clock T. L. Wood, president of the club, called the company to order, and, in behalf of the R. C. Bowers Granite Company—composed of R. C. and H. A. Bowers, Colonel Fred E. Smith and Fred L. Eaton—Colonel Smith presented the club with a beautiful bust of Apollo. This work of art was selected by R. C. est alabaster, a species of marble used especially for statuary for interior purposes. It is a fac-simile of the one in Bulgartia Palace, Rome, and is mounted on a revolving pedestal of dark Belgium marble. This was also manufactured in Florence. Hon. F. A. Dwinell, vice-president of the club, made an apt response to Colonel Smith's happy words of presentation, and gratefully accepted the gift. R. C. Bowers explained more fully the process of manufacture and the material of which the bust is composed, and Professor J. A. DeBoer made a brief impromptu speech, in which he conclusively demonstrated that Apollo was originally the god of medicine, and not of music as is generally supposed. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all present, and this beautiful gift will make a noticeable addition to the already superbly-equipped quarters of this organization.

Shortly before the noon hour, last Thursday, two large dogs belonging to S. I. Staples and Peter Hernon engaged in a nerce fight at the sheds of the Excelsior Granite Company, near the electric light station. While the whole population of that community was witnessing the canine combat, a young man named Will Dunham, from Tufts College, came along on his bloycle. Dunham is small in stature, but is the champion athlete of the college with which he is connected. While attempting to steer his way through the crowd, he accidentally ran against a child belonging to Hernon. He apologized to the father of the child in a gentlemanly way, assuring him that it was purely accidental. But him that it was purely accidental. But Hernon's blood was up, he would listen to no apology, and he sailed in, determined to pulverize the diminutive bloycle rider. When the latter saw that a fight was inevitable, he stripped off his sweater in a twinkling and was ready for business. The dog fight was forgotten. In less than two minling and was ready for business. The dog fight was forgotten. In less than two minutes, science had triumphed over brute force, and Hernon was as thoroughly whipped as any man ever was. When it was seen that Hernon was getting the worst of it, some of his mates at the stone-sheds wanted to turn in and help him, but the bystanders would not allow it, and the young athlete was given fair play. When he had Hernon completely knocked out, he coolly donned his sweater, mounted his wheel, and headed for Barre, followed by the cheers of the crowd. cheers of the crowd.

Papers were served last Saturday in a conspiracy case that will rival in general interest the famous case of Colonel Jacob McClure against the Granite Cutters' Union. A year or more ago, J. M. Boutwell, H. W. Kemp and T. L. Wood of Montpelier and John W. Dillon of Barre purchased a large granite-polishing Plant at South Barre, and commenced business under the name of the Boutwell Polishing Company. Last fall the Granite Manufacturers' Association of Barre and Montpelier endeavored to induce the Boutwell Polishing Company to join the association. For reasons considered good by the members of this firm, they declined to do so, and the result was that last November they were boycotted by the members of the Manufacturers' Association. Their business, which was very large, dropped to almost nothing, and finally they were obliged to sell out, at a very low price. The Boutwell Polishing Company has now brought suit for damages of $10,000 against twenty-eight members of the Manufacturers' Association, twenty-four of whom live in Barre and four in Montpelier. The latter are T. J. Kelleher, T. W. Eagan, the R. C. Bowers Granite Company, and C. H. More & Co. The real estate of all the above defendants in the suit has been attached, and the case will be tried at the September term of Washington county court. The suit is brought on the ground of wrong done in the conspiracy of the Manufacturers' Association to compel the Boutwell Polishing Company to join the association, and because of the loss of business resulting from this conspiracy they were obliged to sell out at a sacrifice. The plaintiffs have retained Dillingham, Huse & Howland, and W. A. Lord, as counsel.

pacity, when it undertakes, of exhibiting a narrowness and personal and sectarian bigotry which are unbecoming in a leading journal of the state. Owing to some fancied wrong in the distribution of job priuting patronage, the Watchman has crooked up its rigid back against the Montpelier Seminary and some of its faculty and is publishing from time to time squibs and articles which are intended to cast reproach on the faculty or the institution. Last week, when good journalism and courtesy, not to say decency, would have had a fair and kindly report of the closing exercises and matters of interest pertaining to the school, nothing appeared except an item in regard to athletic games. In the same issue several columns were given to a Keeley Institute reunion, showing no lack of space or ability to gather news. A journal which is so hidebound in its malice and prejudices as to refuse to report the doings of, or to have a kindly word for, an institution which adds largely to the population, the business and the good name of its town, is an object of pity." The above, from the Barton Monitor, has very much the appearance of a whine. The editor seems to have been quite faithfully coached. An indication of a guilty conscience accusing the WATCHMAN's censor is perceptible in the insinuation about job printing. Since our contemporary, or his short-sighted monitor, refers to the matsor is perceptible in the insinuation about job printing. Since our contemporary, or his short-sighted monitor, refers to the matter, it may not be out of the way to state that, for some reason best known to the managers of the seminary, they have for half a generation or longer given the bulk of their printing to the office in this place which has done more, through its newspaper, to debauch public morals and public sentiment on moral questions, like temperance, than all other forces and influences in the state combined,—and this notwithstandsentiment on moral questions, like temperance, than all other forces and influences in the state combined,—and this notwithstanding the fact that the seminary is an institution that should be interested in morality and temperance in the town to which it invites from their protecting homes the boys and girls of Vermont. Perhaps it has been deemed advisable to so award its printing. Something dangerously near to blackmail, it has been charged, has sometimes been levied by the office in question. In the matter of the Keeley Institute reunion, the Keeley manager showed so high an appreciation of the standing of the Watchman and "its excellent qualities" that he desired a full report of the reunion in its columns, and purchased 2,500 copies of the issue containing the report. Under the circumstances, the Watchman felt very much like devoting some space to this landable institution, although several columns of very desirable matter were thereby necessarily excluded. But the milk in this cocoanut is readily accounted for. It is not found in any alleged disgruntlement about job printing. It is elsewhere. for. It is not found in any alleged disgruntlement about job printing. It is elsewhere. The Watchman made some strictures at the time on the observance, or non-observance, of Memorial Day at the seminary, on a matter in which the principal had full jurisdiction and in which the responsibility lay with him. The principal was piqued by the criticisms, and thereupon a sort of boycott was instituted against the Watchman. If anybody's "rigid back has been crooked up," if there has been any "exhibition of narrowness and personal and sectarian bigotry," certainly it cannot be fairly charged upon what the Monitor is pleased to call—and very truthfully—"a leading journal of the state." The Watchman did precisely what "good journalism and courtesy" dictated, and it is possible it has somewhat outdone the Monitor in this respect. The subject invites further comment, but we

COMMENCEMENT AT GODDARD.

The chapel at Goddard Seminary was filled to its utmost capacity last Wednes-day morning when the graduating exercises The chapel at Goldard Seminary was filled to its utmost capacity last Wednesday morning when the graduating exercises were held. The stage was prettily trimmed with roses, maiden-hair ferns and white pond lilies, and at the rear of the stage was suspended the class motto, "Fac et Spera," Work and Hope. Music was furnished by Eastman & Morey's orchestra of Manchester, N. H. Professor W. R. Shipman of Tufts College, the president of the board of trustees of Goddard Seminary, offered prayer. The salutatory was delivered by Frank H. Bennett of Williamstown. He referred in fitting words to the close of the first quarter of a century of the school's existence, and to the laying of the cornerstone of Thompson memorial cottage the day previous, in memory of her whose strong mind and guiding hand had done so much for the institute. Mr. Benedict's address was brief and to the point. Preston A. Paine of Antonito, Colo., then gave an oration on "Colorado Undannted." He first spoke of the erroneous ideas in existence regarding the future of Colorado, and referred to the many natural advantages this section of our country possesses. Admitted into the Union in 1876, this state has gone steadily on improving and developing. The fall of silver made things look dark in Colorado for a while; but other states suffered as well, and through it all Colorado has been staunch and true to the Union. In its undeveloped resources of lead, copper, iron and coal she has enough to supply many generations. A land of constant sunshine and bracing air, Colorado deserves the name so often given it, the "Garden of the Gods."

Miss Sadie A. Howe of Tunbridge read a bright essay on "Culture in the Country," and the picture she so skilfully drew of country life was a very happy one. She demonstrated that the farmers are fast be[CONTINUED ON FOURTH FAGE]
